

Girls Have No Future Without the Khilafah

News:

Iran held a mass funeral ceremony for 165 schoolgirls and staff killed on Saturday in what Iran has described as a United States-'Israeli' attack on a girls' school in the southern city of Minab.

The 'Israeli' military has claimed it was not aware of any 'Israeli' or US attacks in that area. Throughout its genocidal war on Gaza, 'Israel' has denied multiple deadly attacks on Palestinian civilians, only to later backtrack when irrefutable evidence emerged, then terming such attacks as "accidental".

Iranian state television on Tuesday showed thousands of people filling a public square in Minab. Men waved the Islamic Republic flag while largely standing apart from women draped in black chadors.

From the stage, a woman who said she was the mother of "Atena" held up a printed image of portraits that she called "a document of American crimes". She added, "They died in the way of God."

The crowd erupted into chants against the policies of the US and 'Israel' and shouted "No surrender".

Comment:

With today's advanced technologies, satellite tracking, GPS drones and laser-guided tools, there is no excuse for arguing "mistakes" or "errors".

We know that Gaza was used as a testing ground for many new ways to kill the youth of Muslims and there is enough evidence for the world to understand that there is a special evil at work when snipers actively target children.

The idea of a public apology or recognition of error is simply a PR stunt to hide the real celebration that hundreds of future mothers of this Muslim Ummah have been murdered before they have their chance to mature.

The real danger is not found in the obvious attacks from clear enemies. The danger is from the silence and inaction of those who have the power to defend the innocent children.

They are fully aware of pre-emptive strikes and plans to expand military actions and have collusion with the colonialists to stay disabled in their status as puppet rulers only.

The betrayal does not come from those who have made their hatred of the Ummah clear.

The betrayal comes from those who lie and steal the wealth of the Ummah to preserve the authority of those that seek to harm the Ummah. In the times where we should have our relationship facilitated to be closer to Allah (swt), we have actions that cause us to live in survival and threat, with no peace of mind. The Prophet (saw) never accepted such oppressive situations as even when he could pray in Mecca he understood the need to establish a safe space where the authority of Islam allowed the everyone, women and children to plan for the future without fear. Now an entire school of girls is lost to the lack of true leadership in the Muslim world. The Eid celebrations cannot be normalized with the loss of the young innocent lives that should be present celebrating with their mothers and fathers.
