Abdul-Azim repeated what he said to the Wadi Customs Police Director. The Colonel praised the party and its initiative, and part of his statement was: "The fact that the party comes to us on this issue and delivers these publications to us, this means that it is a great party and "not weak"", and he hoped that the rest of the political parties in Sudan would follow the example of Hizb ut Tahrir, calling for holding a major seminar in the city. He said that he would communicate this matter to the brother, the police chief, who was not present at the time of the visit.
